In this regard, the dependence of youth culture and behavior on achieving spiritual cooperation as an integral system in society is effectively highlighted. Also, the approach to the issue of forming civic responsibility in young people as a separate political-legal, moral-spiritual phenomenon in the process of reforms is scientifically analyzed.

Keywords. Youth, responsibility, cooperation, civic responsibility, spiritual and moral education, values, behavior, labor, morality, spirituality.

Introduction

The issue of forming civic responsibility among young people in our society is one of the important social tasks in the development of our country today. Civic responsibility is inextricably linked with the democratic development of the country, and in the legal democratic development of our country, it creates rights for citizens that translate into equality, solidarity and life realities. Therefore, it requires the observance of these rights, the positive use of their rights. The higher the level of democracy in society, the higher the responsibility of citizens in it. In the process of building a democratic legal state and civil society, the formation of civic responsibility in citizens, raising their legal awareness and legal culture, and moral awareness to a higher level are of great importance.

"The concept of "responsibility" allows us to understand its meaning at the level of everyday consciousness. According to the "Explanatory Dictionary of the Uzbek Language", "responsible" means the one who answers, the one who is responsible [1;555].

The very term "responsibility" expresses the initial basis of the hierarchy of socially responsible relationships. "To answer to whom: God, a higher social authority, the people, history, the next generation of people? To answer to what and for what: for decisions made, for actions taken, for thoughts expressed, for behavior? To answer with what: one's head, life, one's social status and position, deeds?" [2;156].

Research methodology

However, the definition of a concept recognized in science is somewhat more complex and multifaceted than its interpretation in everyday life. When it comes to responsibility in science, "Responsibility is a concept widely used in the spiritual, social, and administrative-legal spheres" [3;286] is meant. Currently, important tasks are being carried out to increase the legal literacy of citizens, improve the existing laws in society, and improve the system of raising the legal awareness and culture of citizens. Also, great attention is paid to the issue of educating a well-rounded person based on national moral values and universal moral values in our rich historical and spiritual heritage. That is, "Value is a philosophical category used to express the value and social significance of forms, states, objects, events, phenomena, processes, conditions, qualities, demands, procedures, etc. of reality that have some significance for humans” [4;306]. In this context, spiritual collaboration is not only the value of the legal relations that arise between the state and citizens in the life of society, but also the social significance, philosophical and axiological content, and value for society and man of the moral relations that arise between citizens. The value of a person, his social characteristics, his activities in society, his attitude to others and the environment, his maturity, his mastery of social characteristics and his ability to manifest them in a spiritual form, directly depend on the level of legal and moral consciousness of the citizen.

Analysis and results

In order for a person to realize the value of his own personality and others, the spiritual image and world formed during his maturation must serve goodness, possess high social qualities, and he himself must be educated to the extent that he correctly understands the essence and purpose of life. In order for a person to mature to this level, it is necessary to raise his legal consciousness and moral consciousness to a higher level.

It strives to contribute to the socio-political, spiritual, cultural, economic development of society. In the country, attention is paid to the continuous implementation of work in the field of legal education, the formation of civic responsibility among citizens, the improvement of their legal awareness and legal culture. Bu borada O‘zbekiston Respublikasi Prezidenti Sh.M.Mirziyoyev “On this joyful day, I assure you, the multinational people of Uzbekistan, that we will continue the state policy towards youth without any deviations and with determination. We will not only continue this policy, but also, as a priority, raise it to the high level that our time demands today. We will mobilize all the forces and capabilities of our state and society so that you can acquire modern knowledge and professions, find a strong place in life, and be happy” [5;497-498]. In this regard, the development of civic responsibility among citizens, the formation of high spirituality based on the development of legal culture and consciousness, moral awareness in them, is being carried out on the basis of instilling legal and moral values in the minds and hearts of citizens.

In the process of reforms being implemented in Uzbekistan, a new worldview, a new legal consciousness and thinking are being formed in accordance with the principles of universal democracy.

The process of building a civil society in Uzbekistan, the creation of a new legal system is proceeding along a unique path. In this, on the one hand, we rely on the ancient rich spiritual-cultural and historical-legal heritage of our people, our national values, and on the other hand, we are working on universal values, international legal experience.

In civil society, social relations, including legal relations, are based on the principles of justice, honesty, integrity, faith and conscience. Universal and national values, human rights are glorified in the spiritual life of civil society. Human dignity and rights are protected in civil society. Among them, moral values such as justice and humanity exist as the determining criterion of relations between people. The legal culture of civil society is based on the existence of a democratic and just legal system, the rule of law and the rule of law, the legal equality of all, the celebration of social justice and the dignity of the human person. The needs and interests of a person are related to economic and spiritual values, and in building a civil society, great attention is paid to activities aimed at educating a person in the fields of culture, spirituality and enlightenment. At the heart of this activity are important values such as high culture, spirituality, ethics, and enlightenment.

Society makes certain demands on young people, which are expressed in moral norms and rules. The spiritual and moral improvement of a person is a continuous process, and as society develops, the person himself also matures.

The presence of a sense of social responsibility in a person is an important aspect of the formation of moral consciousness in him. Morality is a spiritual factor of human activity, which is formed in accordance with the realization of social happiness, ensuring the integrity of personal and social interests, and understanding and feeling of social duty. Worldview plays an important role in the formation of moral consciousness in a person. Moral worldview is formed on the basis of a person's moral attitude to the world. Ideas-beliefs-ideals-activity play an important role in the formation of a person's moral culture and constitute the content of human life. In the process of developing society, morality becomes an internal, inner, necessary need of a person, determining the social direction of his moral activity.

The moral consciousness and culture of a person and a citizen are enriched and improved by changes in certain social relations in society, based on a specific legal system in society. The moral consciousness and culture of a person and a citizen, based on the laws of social development, play an important role in solving social problems based on the demands and needs of society. The process of developing moral consciousness and culture based on a specific legal system takes place on the basis of succession and is based on the dialectical unity and interdependence of national and universal moral values. Moral consciousness and culture are based on moral relations between society and the individual, and represent the process of a person and a citizen realizing their social duty to society and applying it to the life of society based on law and right.

The development and progress of the moral consciousness and culture of a person and a citizen based on a specific legal system in society contributes to the strengthening of the spiritual and moral foundations of society.

In the process of spiritual and moral renewal of society, the civic responsibility of citizens is being strengthened, and knowledge and worldview are being formed on the basis of spiritual and moral values and legal knowledge. In the process of social development, the moral consciousness of citizens plays an important role in raising the spirituality of society. Citizens use rich spiritual and cultural resources to strengthen the spiritual and moral foundations of society. Attention is being paid to the issues of renewing the content and essence of the education system, further improving culture, science, and enlightenment. Raising spirituality in the life of society strengthens citizens' confidence in the future, serves to educate citizens in love for the Motherland, humanity, courage, patience, feelings of truth and justice.

In this regard, our President Sh. Mirziyoyev; “Now the task of each of us, first of all, the heads of state administration bodies, is to ensure the responsible fulfillment of the tasks assigned to us on the basis of a critical assessment of the state of affairs in the sphere and industry for which we are responsible” [6;235] - he emphasized.

The spiritual and moral environment that prevails in society serves to develop moral consciousness and moral culture. The basis of moral rules in the life of society is human relations such as humanity, goodness, humility, discipline, talent, kindness, honesty, friendship, conscience, hard work, faith, and duty. Any actions and relationships that occur in the process of development of society are regulated on the basis of moral and legal norms. In the process of development of society, morality expresses a person's inner spiritual beliefs, while a person's moral culture expresses the manifestation of this belief in practical activity. Moral values have objective and subjective aspects. Objective values are a set of specific events and things that are valuable to a person and are reflected in the minds of people, while subjective values are a set of thoughts, fantasies, and hopes that exist in human thinking, consciousness and activity.

Conclusion

Today, the development of moral and legal consciousness and culture in citizens based on the formation of civic responsibility in young people is of great importance in implementing national education, understanding national identity, and raising a sense of national pride and honor among citizens. A person with moral consciousness and culture, legal knowledge, a broad worldview, and high spirituality controls human dignity, his behavior and actions everywhere on the basis of moral standards, and regulates his activities on the basis of legal laws and regulations. In a society where spirituality is paramount, relationships between people are regulated on the basis of moral standards such as faith, honesty, piety, kindness, and moral qualities such as business acumen, hard work, creativity, and initiative. These moral standards and principles reflect the level of a person's moral consciousness and culture. The richer a person is in spiritual and moral terms, the higher his legal consciousness and culture, and the higher his sense of duty and responsibility.

Today, the revival and elevation of historical and spiritual heritage, moral, political, legal, and religious values in Uzbekistan have a positive impact on strengthening the national spirituality of the people. In the context of national revival, attention is increasing to moral and legal values in the spiritual life of society. The role and importance of moral and legal values in the formation and strengthening of national identity, national pride and dignity are also increasing. In conclusion, civic responsibility among young people in the social development of our country reflects the conscious attitude of citizens to the achievements and successes achieved in the process of democratic development of society. Civic responsibility is an integral part of democratic changes in society. In its democratic development, society grants citizens various rights that make equality, freedom, and fraternity a reality. At the same time, it requires compliance with these rights and the creative use of their rights in the interests of society.
